DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is responsive to communications: request for reconsideration filed on July 25, 2003.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-21 remain rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Haber et al, U.S. Pat. No. 5,136,647 in view of Freeman et al., U.S. Pat. No. 6,006,227, the rejections are provided in the previous Office Action (Paper #7), mailed on June 5, 2003, and fully incorporated herein.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed July 25, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

On page 2 of the amendment, Applicant argues that "However, the limitations that relate to the database of document identifiers and associated certificate identifiers appear to be ignored in the rejection." Examiner disagrees.

Note that page 2 of the previous office action, Examiner states that "It is noted that Haber fails to teach 'building a database of document identifiers and associated certificate identifiers.'" This is statement clearly evidences that Examiner is addressing the limitation. In the next sentences of the rejection, Examiner points out, among others, Figure 1. Note that the Freeman's database in Fig. 1 shows the association of the time stamp certifications (e.g., item 100 which represents the iconized depiction of the time certificate), and the document identifier, as the database allows each document to be retrieved based on an identification of the document.

Secondly, in the last paragraph on page 2 and page 3, Applicant asserts that the Examiner's motivation cannot be understood and is improper. Specifically, Applicant argues that "the rejection fails to provide any evidence from either Haber or Freeman that organizing the certified documents according to the claim limitations would be beneficial for verifying audit trails." Applicant then states that "[t]he alleged motivation is merely a broad conclusory statement of a vague function, and no evidence is provided to suggest the combination.

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, Freeman et al.

explicitly pointed out the advantage of the database used in the invention and the visual display of chronological metaphor of documents (col.2, lines 1-45). Given that a person of ordinary skill in the art with the Haber et al. patent that taught the "time-stamping" and storage of digital documents would have appreciated the benefit of the features taught by the prior art of Freeman et al.

On page 4 of the amendment, Applicant argues that because Freeman et al. maintains a "stream" of documents, Freeman teaches away from the present invention as Freeman "apparently seeks to obviate the need for document identifiers." Examiner disagrees. In order to retrieve any specific item from a database, there must exist an identifier to locate the item, since a database, by definition, is storage of retrievable items.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

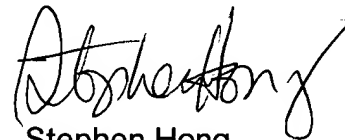

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
